Freedom

Space is Freedom,

*to move over a world where freedom is threatened,
where what we take for granted requires a struggle.*

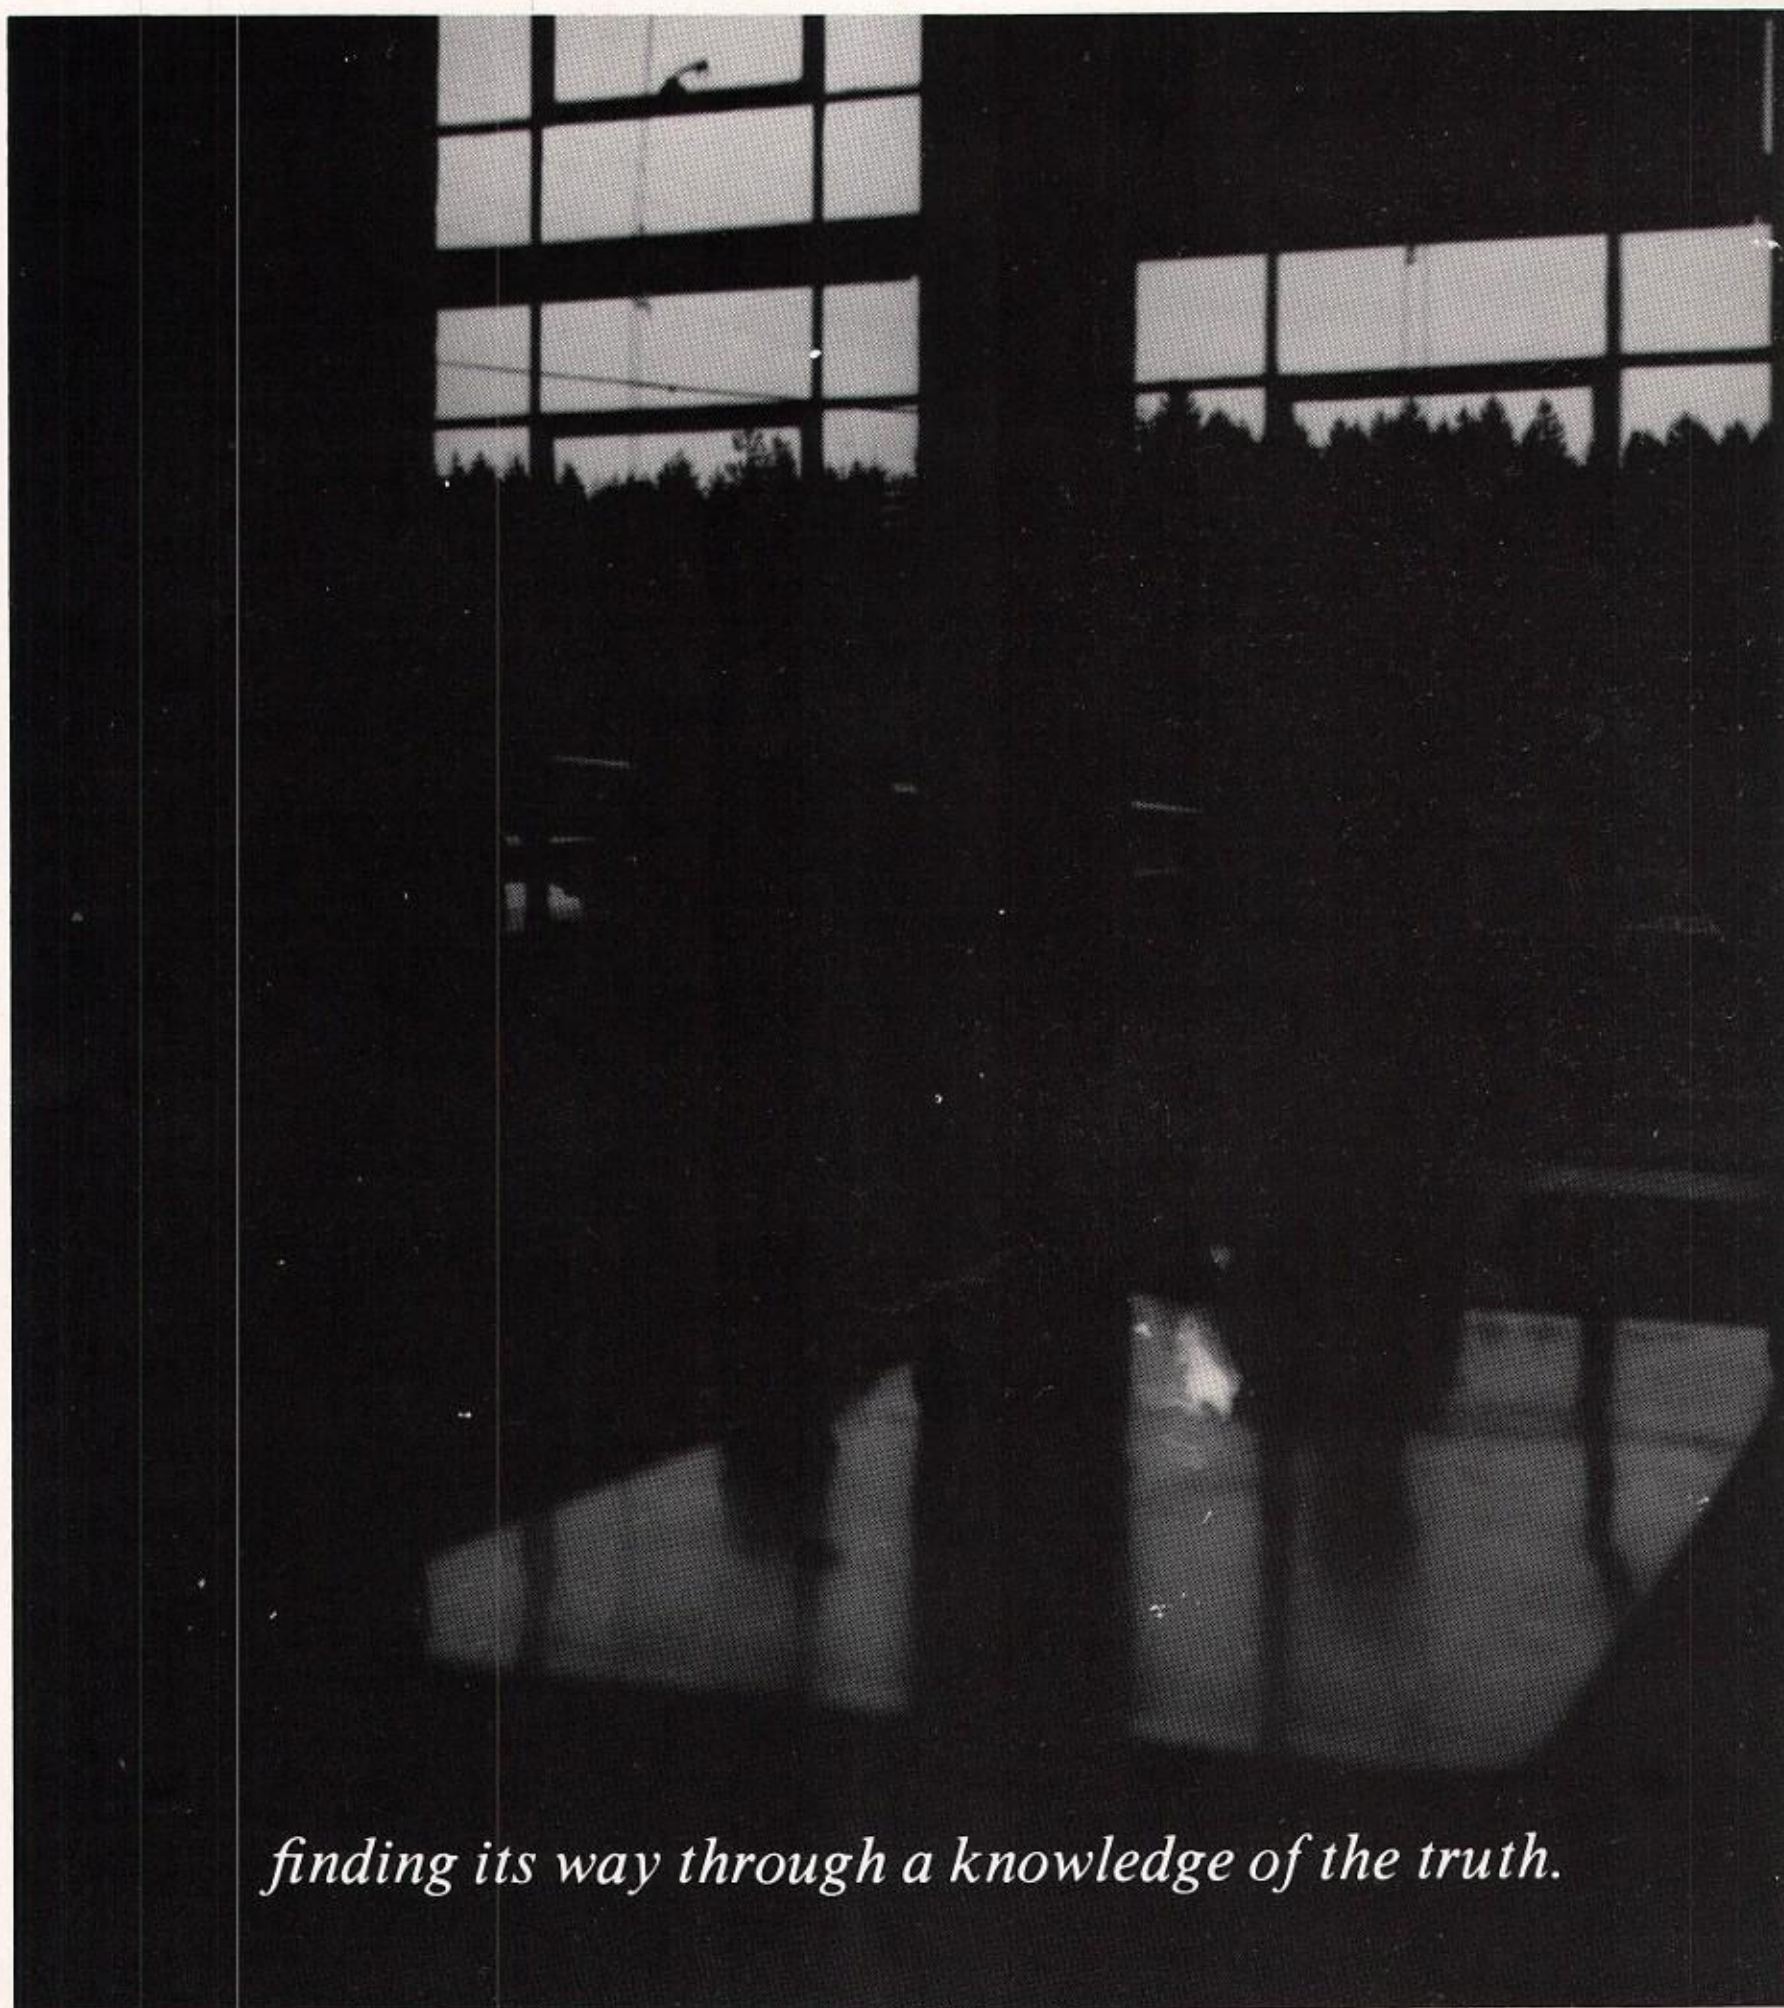

*“Those who expect to reap
the blessings of freedom must,

The beginning of the 1967-68 school year brought about a definite change in the regular routine around Peninsula High School. A new class time schedule was established and operated on a rotating system, which added a new variety to the school year.

Two new faces were also added to the faculty, Mr. Milton Boyd and Mr. Tor Johannessen.

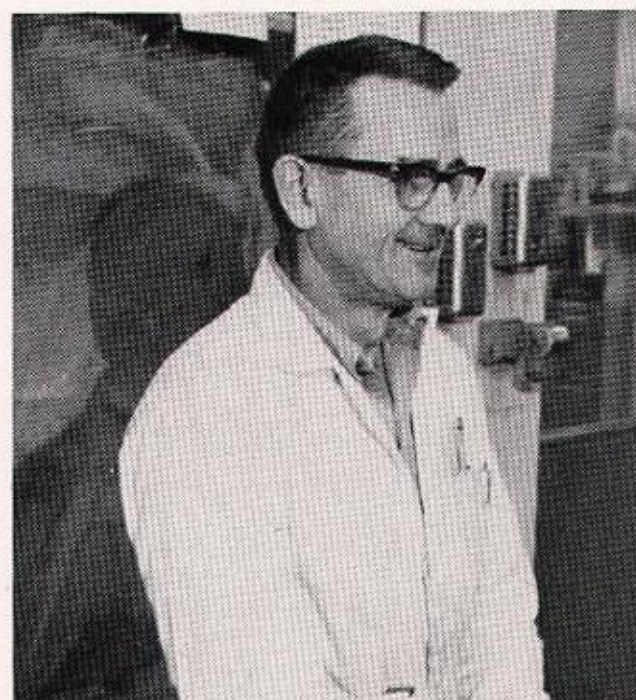

The school board held meetings and worked hard to help acquire needed materials for our school. Due to the tragic death of Mr. Don Polworth, a highly respected and liked person in the community and a newly elected member of the school board, Mr. Ray Payne was appointed to the active board consisting of Mr. Hollis Small, Mr. James Widrig, Mr. Helenes Freiburger, and Mr. Loren Murray.

This year, through the efforts of Mr. Iverson Cozort and the office of Extended Education, a Reality Therapy Workshop was held for the teachers in the district. Dr. William Glasser, a Professor at U.C.L.A., spoke on the new innovations for teaching students to think. One of his suggestions was the possibility of a non-grading system.

Hurrying

*Hurrying, running, working;
Students pry themselves between subjects, change, trains of thought and still find time for a little fast relaxation.*

What's the meaning of it all besides fun and extra activities?

To the average student it means another day, a few more troubles, maybe a laugh or two, but still just another day.

To others it means education, a privilege to enjoy a freedom so many of us take for granted.

Active Council Governed Student Body

Seated: Jake Rice, Kris Allen, Jim Wright, Vivian Spadoni, Marg Smith, Jim Miller, and Pat Lyle. Standing: Mike Veitenhans and Randy Babich.

Student Council members were kept busy reorganizing and improving student life.

Under the leadership of A.S.B. President Randy Babich, and the new faculty advisor, Mr. Gary Stainbrook, the Council met in the student lounge and acted as a sounding board for many new student ideas.

After thorough discussions, the ten member group initiated a new letter system for the lettermen, purchased a new IBM-Selectotype for paper staff, and bought the new apple machine. They also changed the Constitution to allow the Editor-in-Chief of the Outlook to attend meetings in order to improve communications between Student Council and the Student Body.

In addition, the regular duties of selling activity cards, handling the door-decorating contest, selecting national assemblies, and selling candy were carefully attended to.

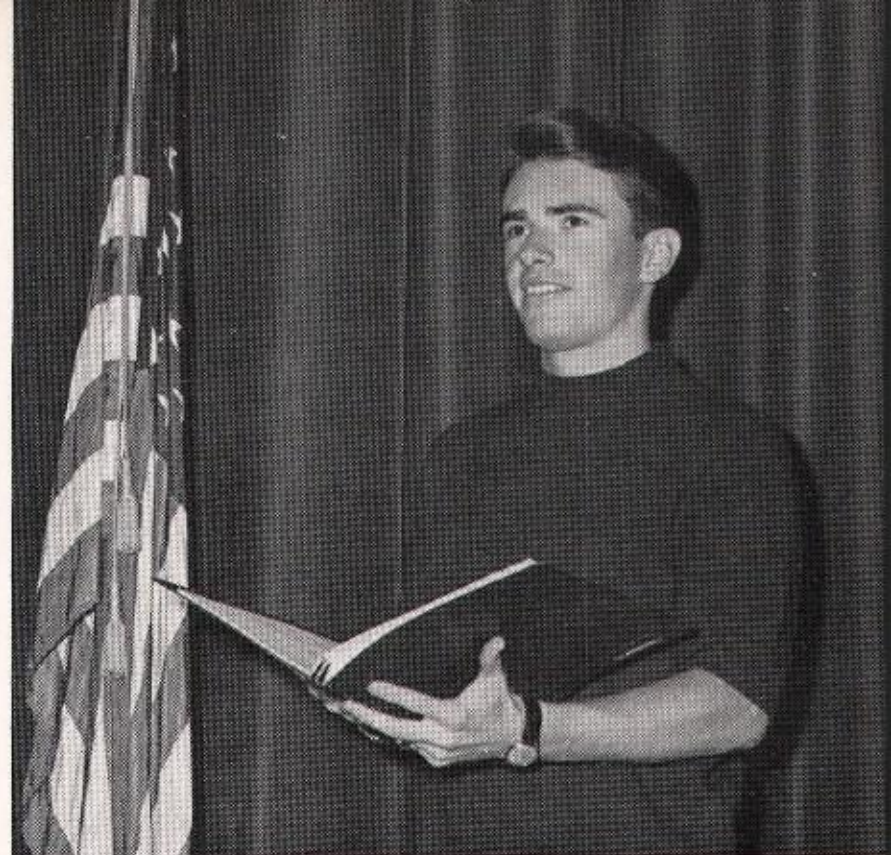

For the first time in the league, an all new inner-high council was formed. This group consisted of a Student Council member and a representative from the various schools in the league, and was created to improve communications between the schools.

Student Council and their advisor discussed current school business.

Mike Heads Senate

Senate took on a new face this year as it became the official group for "constructive criticism." Along with a new purpose, it also acquired a new advisor, Mr. Warren McNeely.

Senate's main job this year was to answer questions brought up by various student groups, and try to rectify any complaints. In order to accomplish this, joint meetings were sometimes held with Student Council. Through these efforts, closer ties were established between the Council, the representatives, and the roll-room members.

Many thankless jobs were often left to be handled by the Senate members. It was their duty to set up chairs for assemblies, try to keep honor study halls in order, and see that back to school night ran smoothly.

Like other organized groups, Senate had its officers. Chris Sather was elected secretary and Doug Johnson was elected vice-chairman. Mike Veitenhans, ASB Vice-President, assumed the duties of chairman and directed Senate toward a prosperous year.

Disappearing on the second Wednesday of every month the intellectual cream-of-the-crop congregated in room forty-six for Torch Club meetings. The members of this club all have a grade point average of three point or above.

President Steve Hall presided over the meetings with Mr. Velez as the well-informed advisor of the group. Keeping educationally busy this group did not participate in as many activities as others. However, when an event was planned it was an event to remember. Some of these events were: a Torch banquet, in which the whole club went to a restaurant and dined, a school dance, sponsored by Torch, and initiation for the members.

The peak in importance of activities was the student day, which was a joint operation involving the Torch Club and F.T.A. This was a day when the students took over the school. Signing up for the classes that each student felt he could handle. This list was given to the faculty, and student teachers were chosen. While the school went to the students, the teachers had meetings on school curriculum.

FHA and FTA

Diana Mosiman, Kathy Spadoni, and Sharon Tomlinson.

FHA was organized a little differently this year. In past years, the girls who were enthusiastic and came to each activity day meeting became members of the club. This year, all the girls in any Home Economics class are members of the club whether or not an active participation is shown in the meetings.

To raise money, the officers and members, under the leadership of Marlene Brones, sold apples at the beginning of the year for those students who stayed after school.

In the tradition of past years, FHA members went to the Regional Meeting in the fall and to Recognition Day in the spring. The meetings proved to be worth while, so in addition to these, the club also sent two girls to the State Meetings.

Work towards a better tomorrow

It was a rare day in the 1967-68 school year that FTA president, Janet Henry, or vice-president, Diana Bretsen couldn't be seen slaving over some project on FTA. These students along with others such as secretary, Marcia Smith, treasurer, Jeff Rothwieler, and activity chairman, Rae Armstrong, spent many hours preparing for the many activities that the club originated and participated in. The money raising projects during the year were not only interesting, but also profitable. Selling windbreakers, for instance, and selling pictures of the students on Santa's knee, showed the extent of imagination and initiative that the club possessed.

Illustrating the "just plain fun" that the members of this club enjoyed was the Christmas Party at the house of the club's advisor, Mrs. Ruth Crook. The object of the party was to trim a Christmas Tree, but after that was done, the evening was spent in games and enjoyment.

Being an educational club originally, the club lives up to its tradition by sponsoring a tutoring service, helping with student day, and granting a one hundred dollar scholarship to a deserving senior.

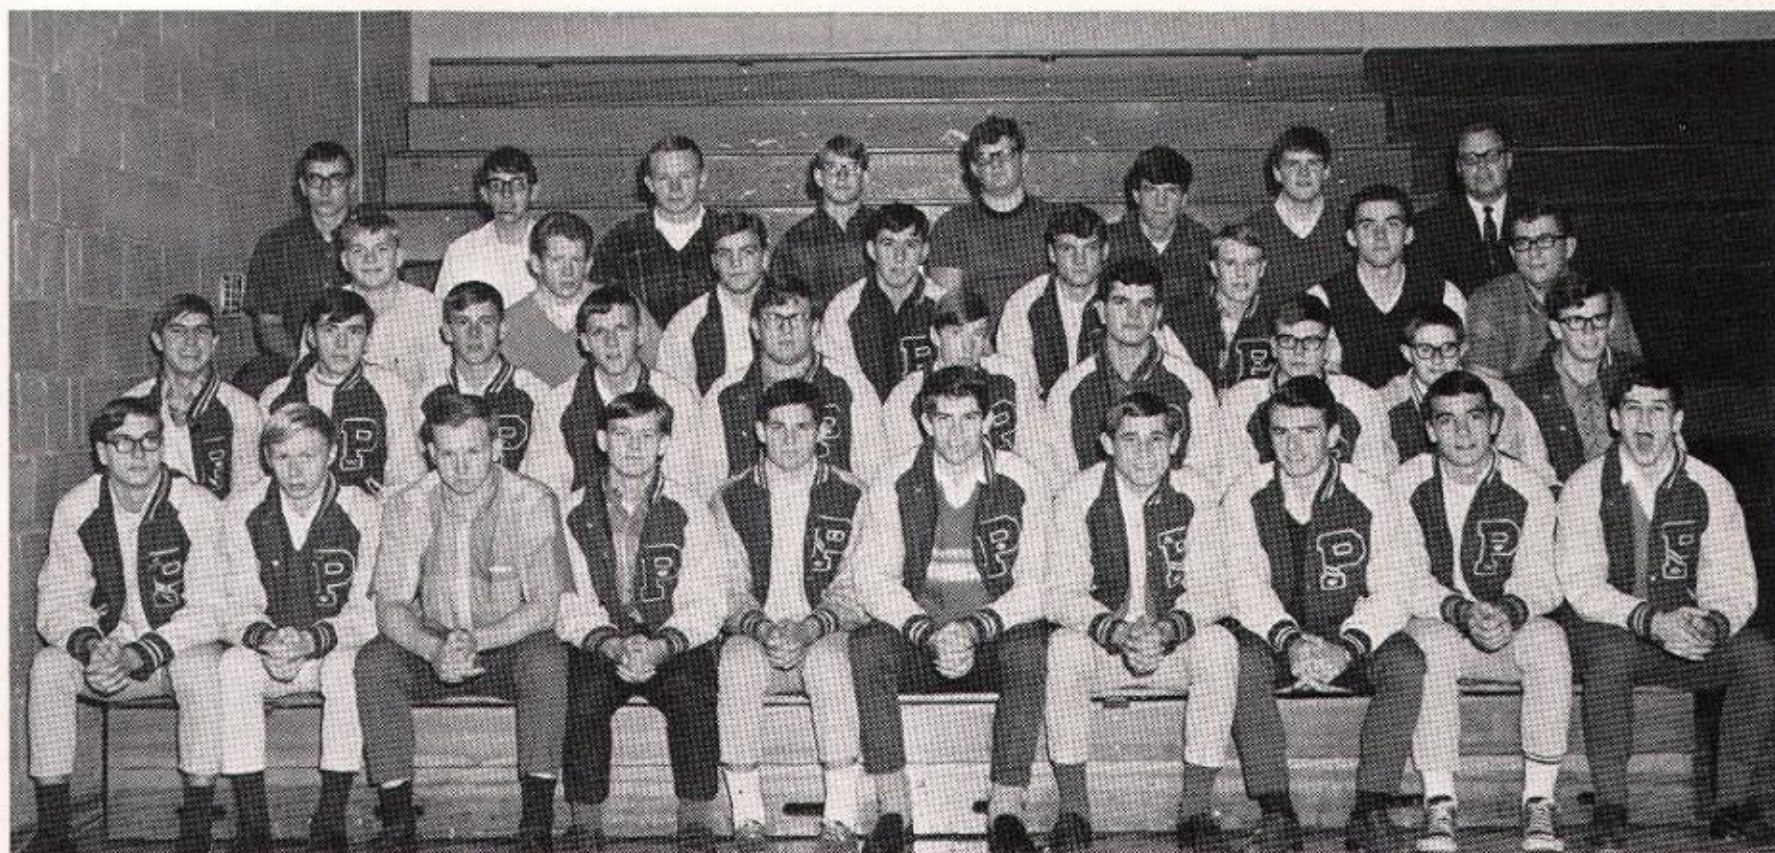

Among the other events were a senior party, a field trip, and a membership banquet.

Lettermen devote time and energy

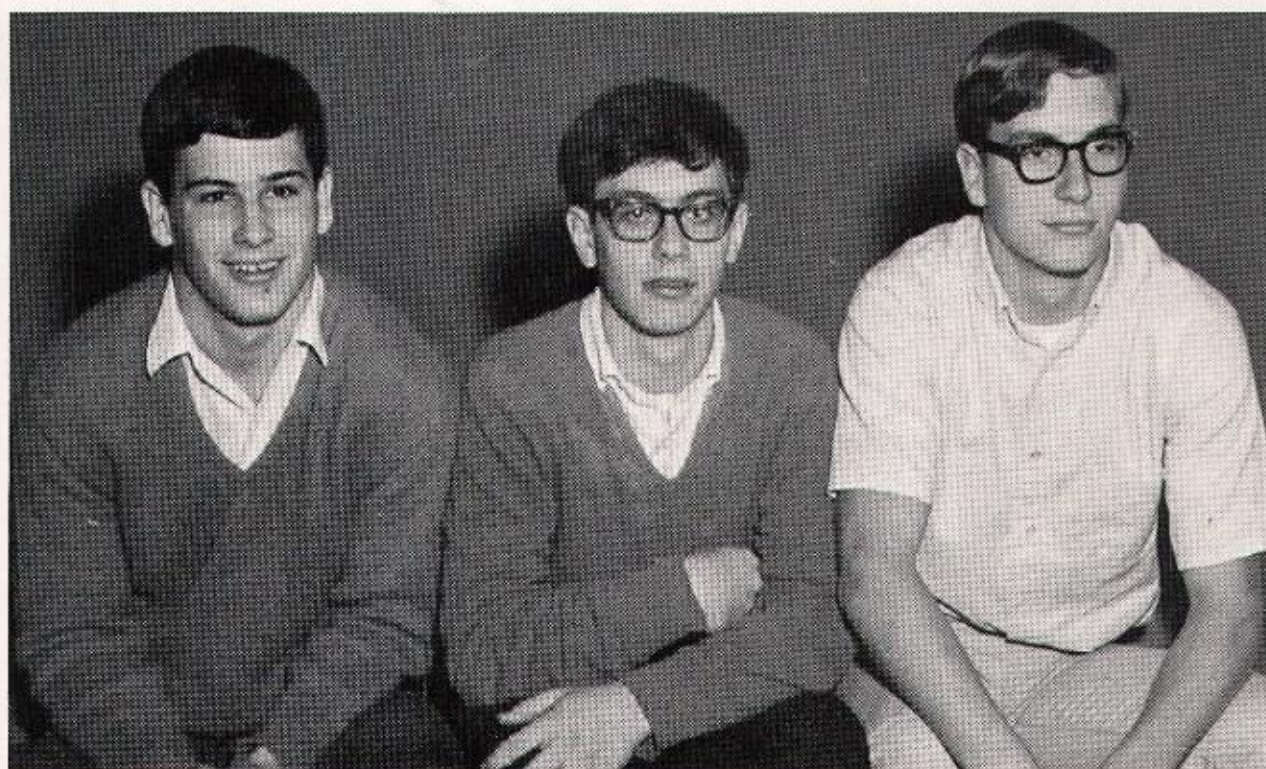

Lettermen's club president Jim Wright.

Willing to lend a helping hand, the lettermen's club, made up of everyone receiving a letter in any sport, renewed from last year their pledge of assistance in the recovery project of Tommy Borgert. Tommy was born with brain damage but with special therapeutic exercises, recovery is possible. The Lettermen participate every weekday morning in hour long sessions and twice weekly in the afternoon.

As this project took most of the lettermen's time, the club had little time for other activities. They had a metal drive, however, to raise money for a new whirl pool bath, which speeds the recovery of pulled muscles from three weeks to three days.

February the ninth was the date of the annual lettermen-faculty basketball Game.

The highlight of the year came when the new lettermen were initiated into the club. This rather messy event happened after football season was over and included everything from wearing their clothes backwards all day and having an eloquent dinner of raw gold fish, raw oysters, and raw eggs, not to mention the haircream that was made from molasses.

OFFICERS: Jerry Faker, Jake Rice and Ralph Brindly.

Boys Club has a busy year

With the help of enthusiastic leaders, Jake Rice, Jerry Faker and Ralph Brindly, and advisor, Mr. Witt, the Boy's Club entered into many activities during the year. The first of their money raising projects, selling Seahawk buttons, started the year out right and proved to be very successful.

With the help of the Boy's Club, Homecoming turned into a great success.

On the agenda for the Boy's Club, also, was the sale of fortune cookies. This sale was a joint activity between the Boy's Club and the Girl's Club.

To climax the events of the year was the proposed formation of a Service Club. This club would perform the needed duties of the student body such as the concession workers, car parkers, etc.

GAA: a sports minded group

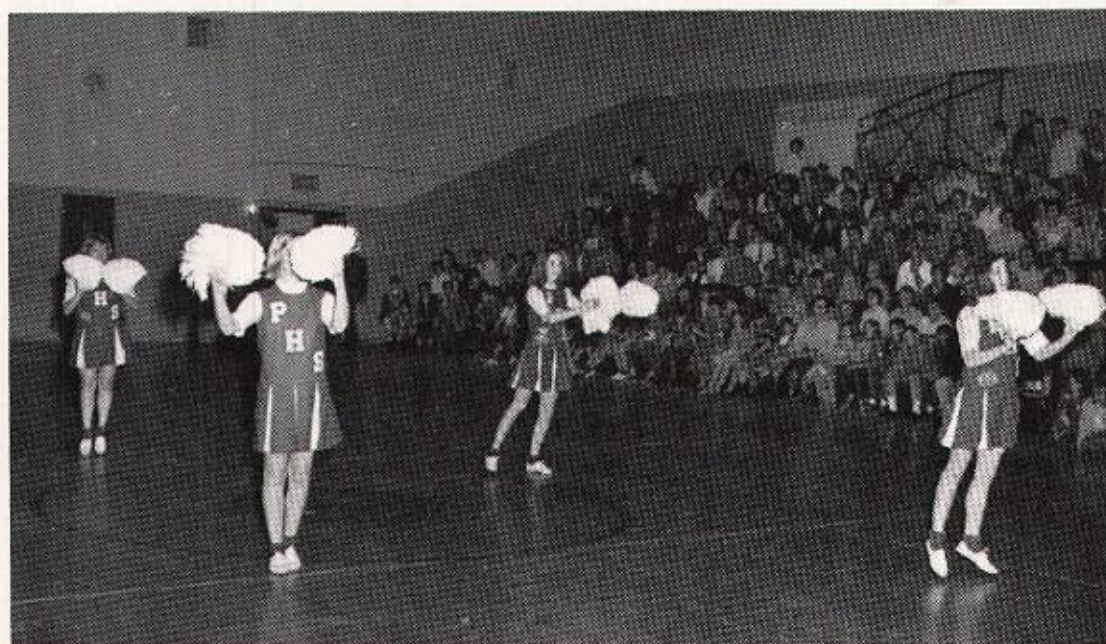

GAA President Kathy Spadoni.

Girls Athletic Association, better known as GAA, participated in an energetic season this year. Meeting for their activities on Mondays after school, president Kathy Spadoni, vice-president Helen Knickerbocker, sec.-treas. Linda Larson, and sports mang. Carol Olson, with Mrs. Norma Martin, planned out the entire agenda for the year.

The schedule was set up on a quarterly basis, starting with football, and including soccer, archery, basketball, bowling, table tennis, badminton, volleyball, softball, and tennis.

The membership was made of those students who wished to earn a letter or just plain have fun. Because of the enthusiastic leadership of its president, the club doubled its membership. To honor the letter winners, GAA planned a picnic at the home of Anita McCabe in the spring.

Drill Team and Seachicks

Footwork is important.

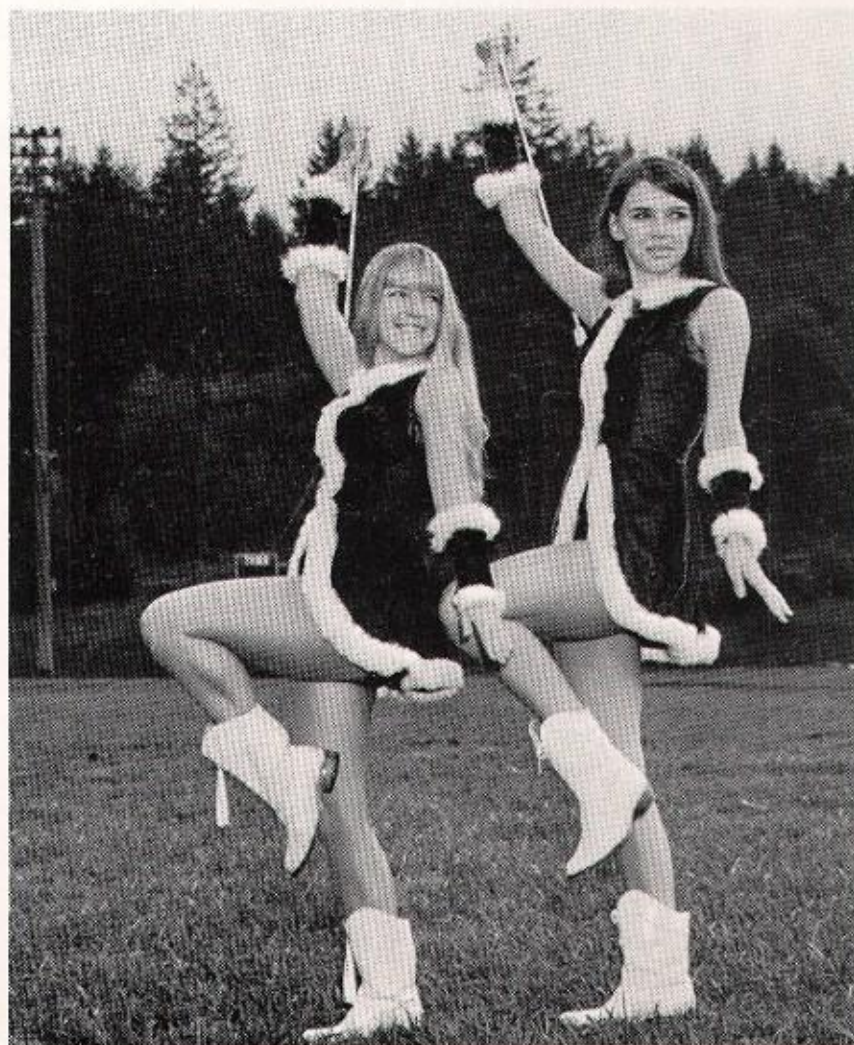

Setting the pace for Peninsula's entertainment, the Drill Team put on many intricate half-time shows for enthusiastic crowds of spectators at the football and basketball games. Under the advisement of Mr. Bruce Brummond, many hours of hard work resulted in the success of the rhythmical body and group maneuvers. In order to learn routines in such a large group, four drill captains took over the show at first. These captains, Janet Henry, Jolene Fraychineaud, Jorja Peterson, and Judy Nieman, had to learn the routines thoroughly and therefore put in extra hours of their time. One of the great achievements of the group was marching for Peninsula's homecoming. The conditions were miserable with a steady downpour but the team did such a good job that they also performed for the league championship game at Fife. Being successful there also, the team was off to an excellent start.

Girl's Club, a tradition of Peninsula High School was very active this year. This club consisted of the entire female population of Pen High. Leading this large group of girls was its president, Kris Allen. With such a large club it would seem almost impossible to accomplish anything but nevertheless it did. For example, a canned food drive was sponsored by the Girl's Club at Christmas for the benefit of needy families.

One of the main duties of the Girl's Club was to introduce new students, frosh and transfers, into Peninsula High. The performance of task was begun with a slumber party in the gymnasium, where a movie was shown and as usual no one got any sleep.

The Girl's Club sponsored the Homecoming dance, a light show.

"Happiness" was the best way to describe the tolo activities organized by Marianne Guasta and Donna Kelly. Happiness began with dress alike, and a "hush" button contest with Al Ross becoming "Mr. Irresistable."

A dating game, a rooster crowing contest and a musical skit presented by the faculty, all contributed to the successfulness of the tolo assembly directed by Jane Cooper and Marcia Smith. The days activities were completed with the traditional tolo dance and crowning of the royalty.

President Jane Cooper.

The 1967-68 year brought about many changes in the organization of the foreign exchange program. This year more than ever, the officers and representatives worked more closely with the mothers who devoted so much of their time to make this project a success. By coordinating their efforts, two successful dances were held at the beginning and the end of the school year.

President Jane Cooper and officers Mike Heckart, Vicki Giles, and Claudia Wade also initiated several fun projects this year. To liven up the halls at school during the Christmas season, candy canes were sold by the many energetic representatives chosen from each class. Then in February SFA made it possible to send special telegrams for Valentine's Day.

The traditional big money making project was undertaken in the spring as members worked hard to sell radio ads, and the presentation of these over a local radio station proved to be exciting for all of those who participated.

Berend Bruns, this year's representative, from Peter Peterson School in Germany, proved to be an interesting person to know. He took an active part in student life and enjoyed performing with the Pen High Choir. He also proved to be a very capable student in his Junior classes.

Opening up the traditionally lively German Club events of the year was the Oktoberfest. Entering into this evening of fun, the German classes performed skits and later everyone sang songs led by Patty and Becky Craig. Next came the German Club Party, which was held at the Packard Home, where Berend Bruns established residence while attending the first semester of Peninsula High School. The German Club's annual Spring Beach Party ended the year's festivities.

Chris Sather, this year's German Club president, supervised the majority of the planning with his officers, but the members, who are made up of all the students of German classes really made the club successful.

GERMAN CLUB OFFICERS: Advisor, Miss Kunsing, Dave Lepannon, Chris Sather, Gorja Peterson, Berend Bruns, George Williams.

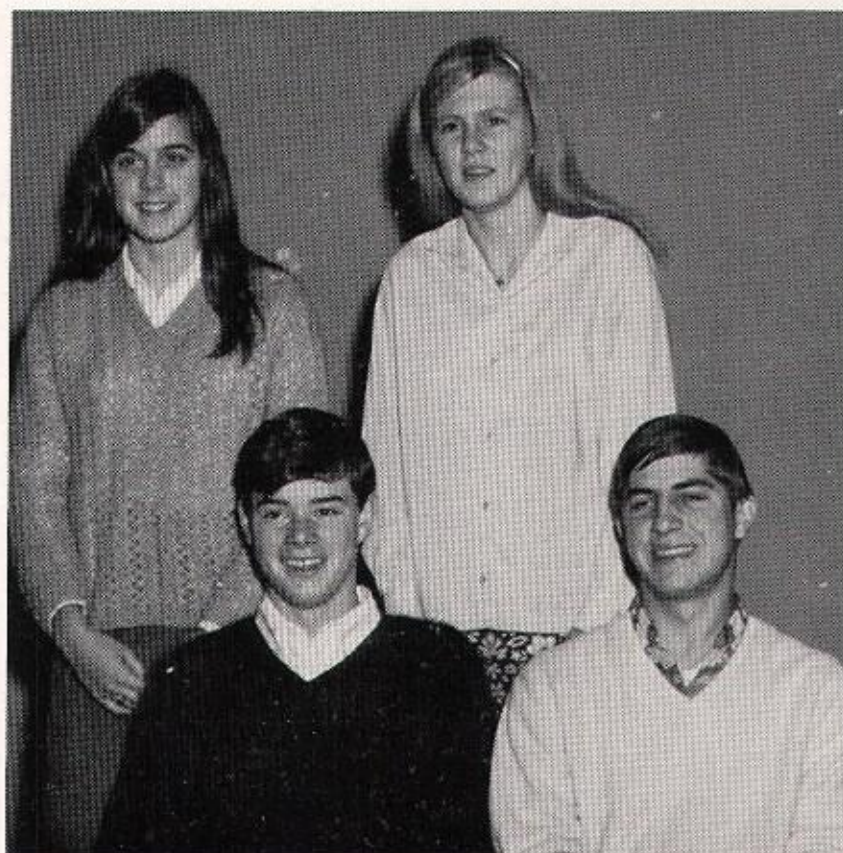

Habla Español?

Eugenio Gomez became the target project for the Spanish Club under the leadership of Scott Chunn, its president. The project consisted of "adopting" a child of another country and sending him the essentials of life.

As far as activities are concerned, the Spanish Club began the year with a banquet at the new Brad's smorgasbord.

Entering into the Christmas season with the right spirit, the Spanish Club sent a record and a card to Sherri Perkins at Seattle, and as a money making project the club sold Christmas cards and candles.

A Spanish Club exchange program has been the hope of every Spanish Club since it was formed, but this year's club has made the most progression toward it. A Mexico exchange Program was started last year on a voluntary basis, and the participants came back this year and showed slides of their trip. It was a complete success.

Red Cross, A Traditionally Helpful Club

Red Cross is a service club at Peninsula High. Under the direction of Marlene Ketner and Mr. David James, advisor, projects were carried out to help those in need of friendship. Officers like Marg Smith, Kathy Spadoni, and Kathy Baldwin, put in long hours to make this organization a success, and bring more happiness to the lives of many lonely people at Madigan Hospital. Chairman, Pat Johnston saw to it that every month party boxes were sent to the boys there to help entertain them.

The annual Red Cross Assembly was again held in November with the Senior skit coming out on top. A featured presentation by the P.U. choir was a great success and gave the Class of '68 its second win in a row.

Helping those in need was a large job to tackle, but Red Cross came through and took pride in sending their greeting boxes overseas. They planned out an active year, and settled down to do their share in helping the less fortunate.

Attending the training course sponsored by Red Cross were Marg Smith, David Leppanen, Priscilla Hill, Pat Johnston, seen here talking with president Marlene Ketner.

The 1967-68 Debate Team was comprised of a select group of students who held an interest in intellectual competition. Their topic this year, Resolved: That Congress should establish uniform regulation to control criminal investigation procedures, was thoroughly covered by the team members and their advisor, Mrs. Verna Todd.

The team's knowledge of this current subject, and their ability to express this knowledge, showed up at the December meet at St. Martins, when out of 23 represented schools, Scott Aspmann took first place in oratory events, and Carl Ash and Scott Aspmann, as debate colleagues, took fourth place in debate.

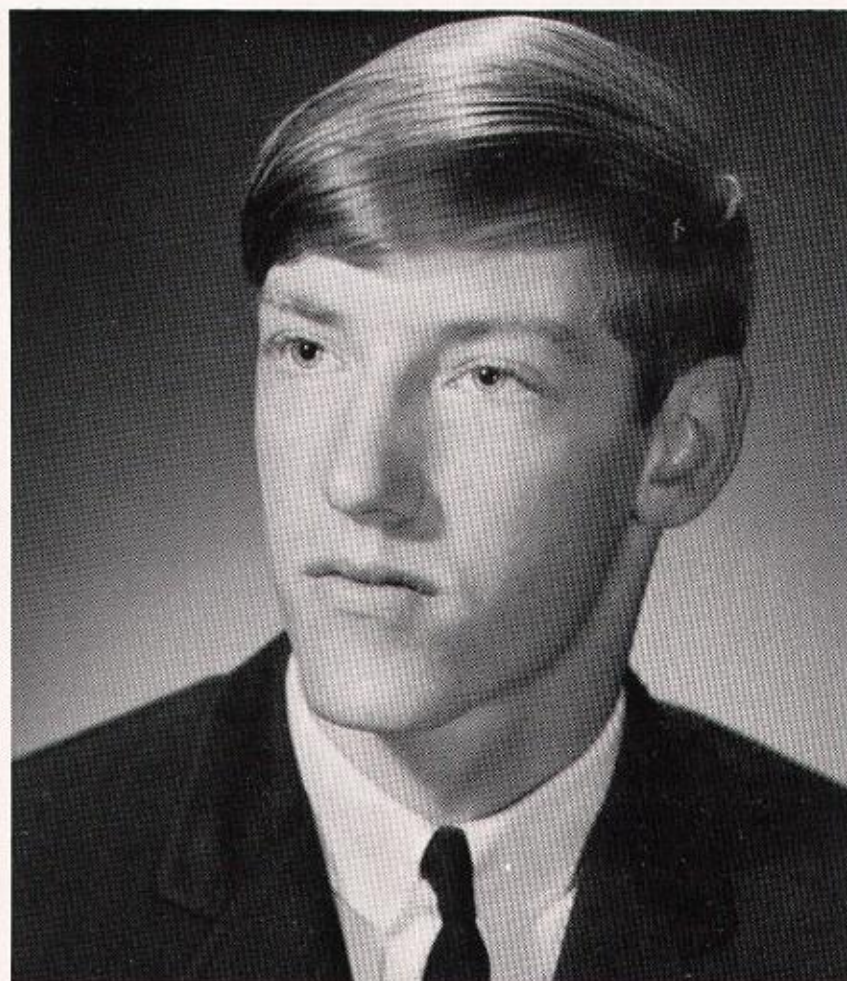

Being a fairly young team with a lot of talent and experience, this year's record was extremely impressive and left high hopes for next year's team.

The "Outlook" Keeps the Student Body

Editor Jack Merry.

The most publicized group in Peninsula High School is the paper staff. This fact remains true for one reason, that is that every other Friday of the school year, except during vacations, the staff edits a paper containing the happenings around the school.

Some new developments have occurred in the 67-68 paper staff, however, that were important and interesting to the student body. With Jack Merry as editor-in-chief, and Patti Culver as associate editor, things began to pop. For instance, it was ruled by the Student Council that the paper staff would become an ex facio member of the Student council so there would be a closer communication between the student body and the council.

Copy editor, Libby Seifert became correspondent to the Bremerton Sun this year and brought Teen Beat to the students of Peninsula. This teenage paper contained new and up to date articals that were especially important to the present generation.

Yearbook is Created

Under the leadership of Editor Dale Neel and Advisor Mr. Stephen Tellari, annual staff worked hard to create a book that would clearly present a history of the school year.

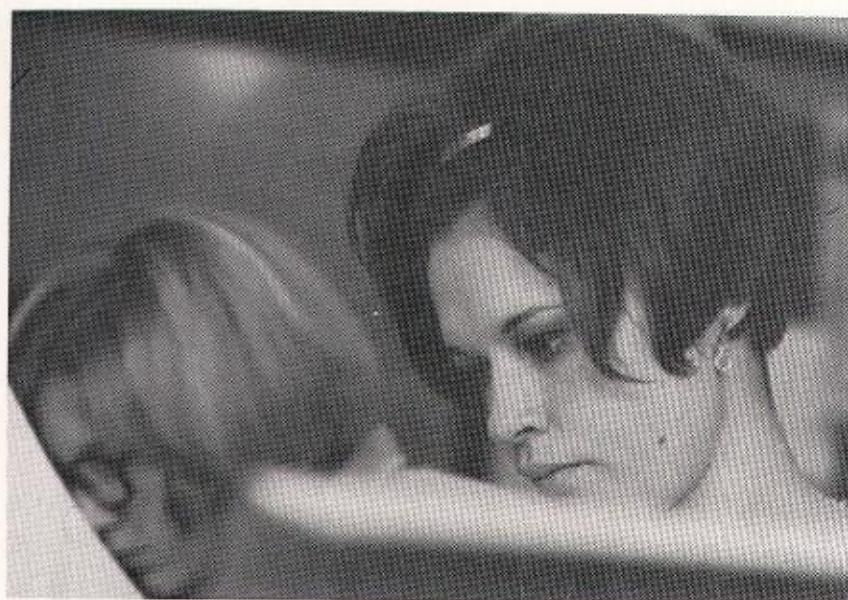

Starting off the year was the annual Publications Conference at the University of Washington. Those who attended met in classes and learned what to look for in judging a good annual.

Just before its first deadline, the annual staff learned the value of time and the drawbacks of procrastination. However, with "Freedom" as the theme for the '68 Kwahaes, last minute interviews were made by the copy department, while the top photographer and associate editor, Jeff Rothweiler, was busy taking needed pictures for the various layouts.

All in all, everyone put in many hours of hard work but they also received a lot of fond memories to look back on and remember.

Serve the School

Every morning in the far corner room of the student center a light went on and an intricate metal machine was put together. This was the ice cream machine. Every day it gurgled and went on and off at the hands of the concessionaires.

The money taken in by the sale of the cones, shakes, drumsticks, and ice cream sandwiches, was put into the A.S.B. fund.

The student concessions were supervised by Mr. Cozort, who was the trouble-shooter if anything went wrong. His job, however, became a little easier because of this year's improved student attitude toward the project.

And then came the thankless task of clean-up. This messy job fell into the hands of Mrs. Day and Ray Fezler who gave up their time just as the concessionaires to do a favor for the benefit of the student body.

Librarians

Because of the failure to pass the bond issue, library assistants were forced to do their various jobs within a limited amount of space.

The most active area was the work room in the back of the library. Here books for the entire district were sorted, numbered, and stamped.

A new addition to the magazine room and the library itself was the microfilm. All back issues of magazines were transferred onto microfilm and made available to the students through the use of the special viewing machine.

All of these various materials within the library were made possible through the efforts of the head librarian, Mr. Burl Knickerbocker.

Pre-season predictions saw the Seahawks far from first place. Despite this, a hard working football team pushed ahead to win the Mount Division Championship, something that hasn't been done since 1957.

Following the season, the various awards were presented following a banquet held at Brad's Restaurant. Six team players were additionally honored when they were chosen as members of the All Seamount Team. This helped to add up to a team that will be remembered for its tough defense and dedication to the game.

Pat Lyle runs for a touchdown.

It looked like a slow start, but for many players, three years of hard work began to pay off after a 20-10 victory over Sumner. It was during this game that the Seahawks, spurred on by a tough defense, realized their full potential.

Peninsula's greatest effort was put forth as the Seahawks battled against the Bethel Braves. This 21-0 win clinched the Mount Division Championship of the Seamount League.

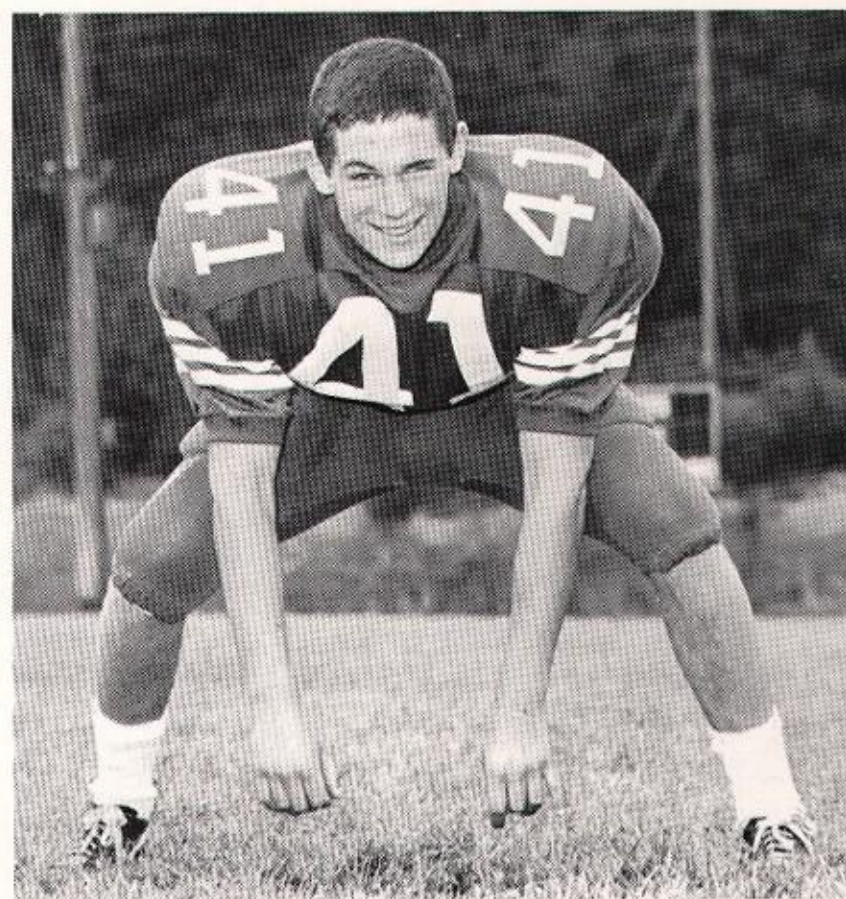

The highlight of the football season, and one of the most important events on the 67-68 calendar, came when the Seahawks traveled to Sumner to meet the Fife Trojans. Before a crowd of 4,500 people, a strong Peninsula team gave Fife their hardest game, but was defeated by a score of 21-6.

In addition to all league games, Peninsula also played the Number 5 "AA" ranked team in the state, the Port Angeles Roughriders.

This year's basketball Player's were faced with a difficult task of holding Peninsula's championship title. To make things more difficult, the team did not have the confidence of the spectators nor their fellow students. However, regardless of this slow start in enthusiasm and spirit, this year's team proved that they could win. Although the Seahawks didn't place first, their third place standing showed that they were working hard to hold the image previously set.

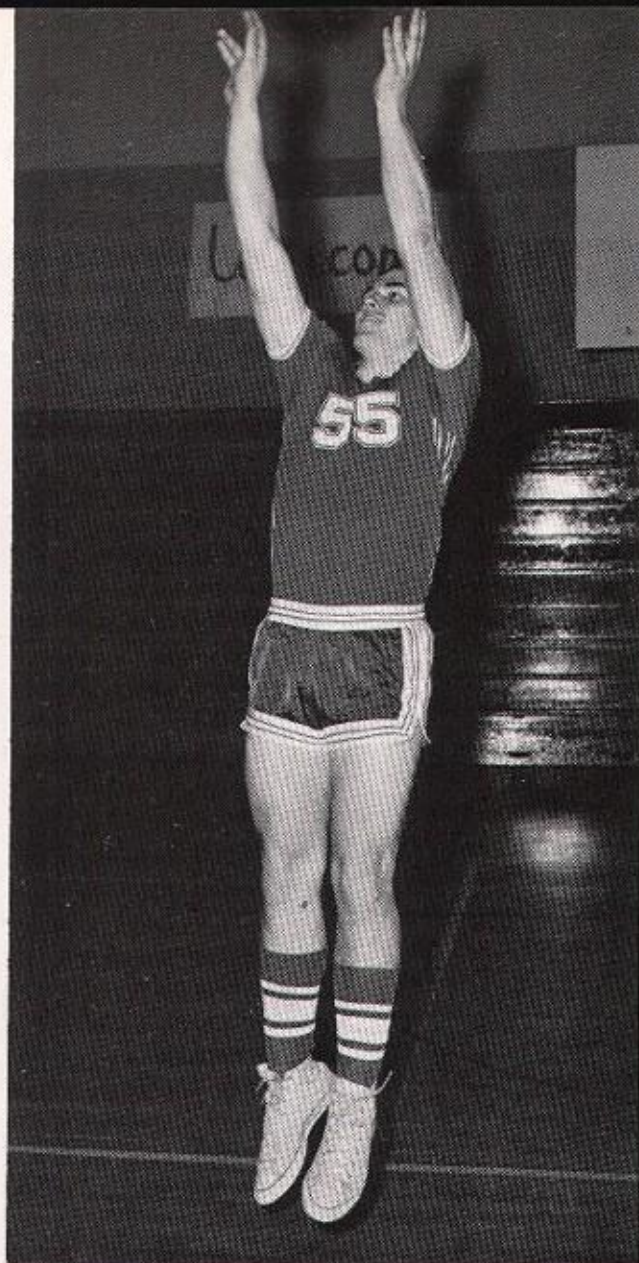

With only two returning seniors, the juniors provided the backbone of the team in quantity as well as quality. Al Ross was the only senior in the starting five. Juniors held the other four positions, they were: Greg Garnett, Tom Lester, Pat Lyle, and Bill Schemell.

Up and over the pole vaults Rick Snider.

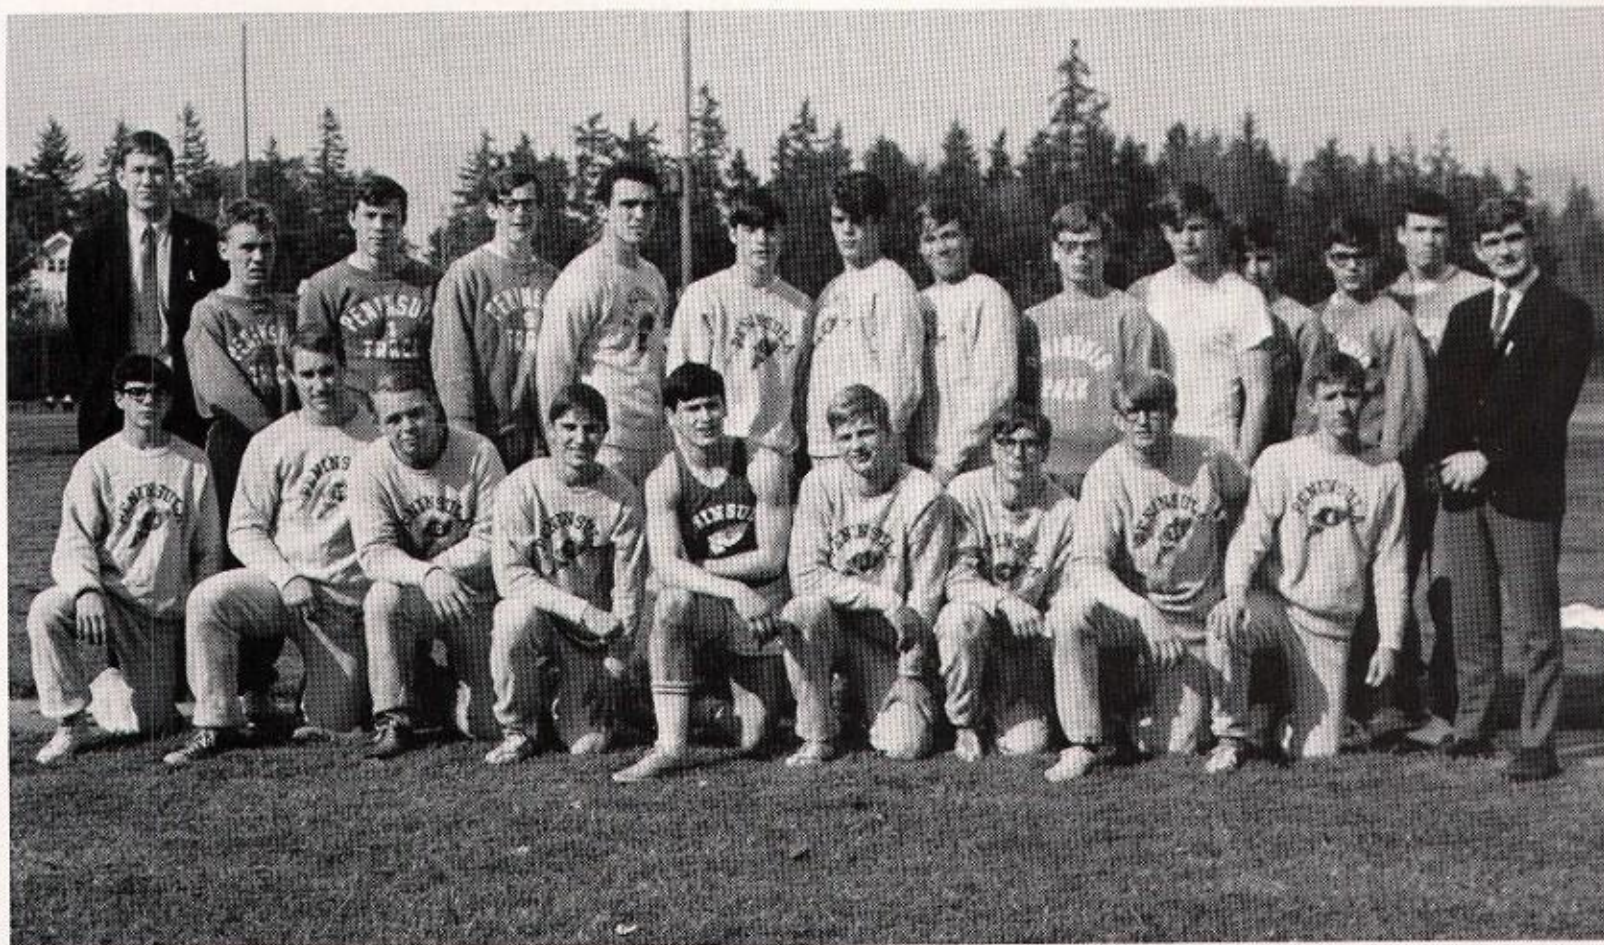

Great prospects were in line for the Seahawk track team this year. Coach Gary Stainbrook relied heavily on a senior dominated team, and with the aid of many energetic underclassmen, talent and experience built the foundation of an enterprising team.

Returning letterman Ralph Brindley and Jerry Faker were the star sprinters, while Jim Wright again proved to be the top pole vaulter. Alan Ross, Flip Blake, and Doug Johnson, senior weightmen, handled the shot put and javelin, and runners Bob Sinclair and Phil Serka showed much ability in the long distant runs.

This comparatively small team, with its desire and ability to succeed, made a fine showing in the league standings.

Coach Warren Hozapfel undertook his second year as Peninsula's head baseball coach. Returning to help him were five of last year's star lettermen. They included seniors, Chris Sather, Tim Bannon, Mike Skrivanich, and Rick Squance, and Junior, Ray Shindler.

A potentially strong group of sophomores also turned out to add their talent and gain experience for upcoming seasons. Eighteen varsity players and twelve junior varsity players made for a good team as was demonstrated by their practice spirit.

Automation was illustrated by the use of the automatic pitching machine that was used to raise batting averages and save arms at the same time.

Tennis,

Coach William Witt found the tennis team working hard all year with the desire to do well.

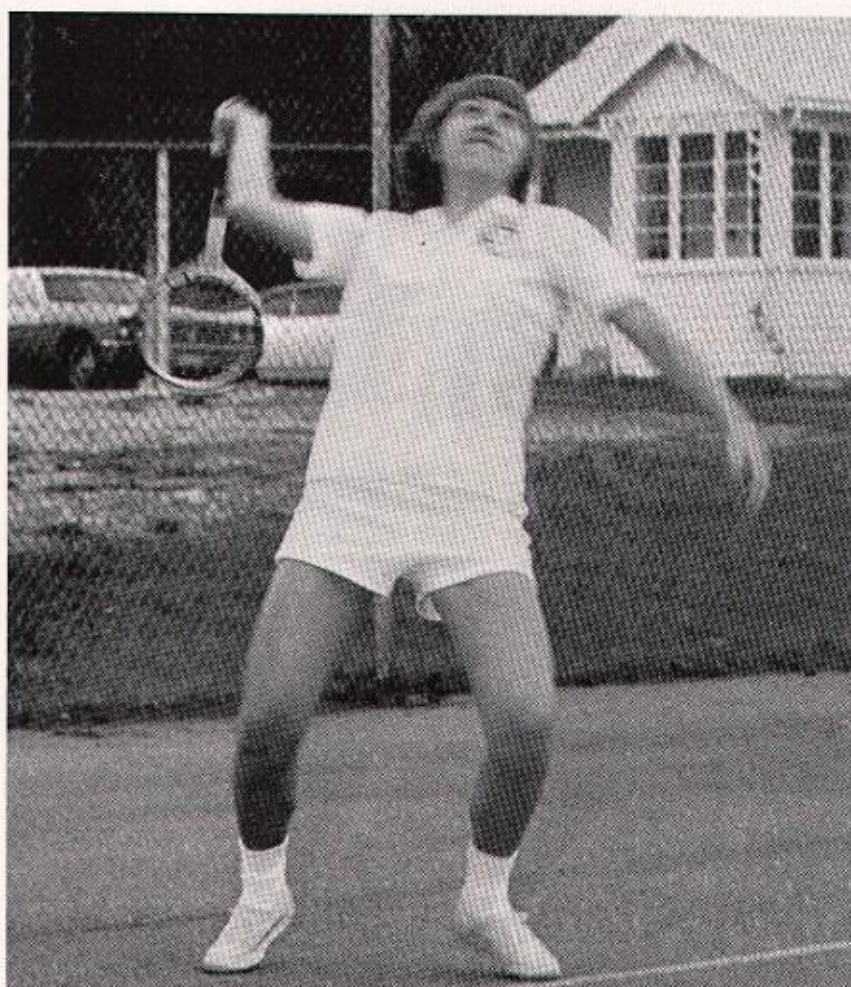

With only four returning lettermen: Dave Eaton, Steve Hall, Janet Henry, and Helen Knickerbocker, this year's team lacked experience, but proved to be one of the best balanced teams that Coach Witt has ever worked with.

Nightly workouts and many unscheduled practices insured a team ready to meet any challenges. These were a group of students who worked hard, stayed in shape, and had a lot of fun all at the same time.

Seahawk matmen and Coacher Oscar Schock and James Harrison put another year of experience behind them in Peninsula's second year of wrestling. Although the Seahawks were unvictorious in ten matches the team grows each year in confidence and experience.

Out of the 15 wrestlers this year there were only 4 returning lettermen: Jim Wright, Ralph Brindly, Chris McKinney and Greg Stacy with senior Jim Wright leading most of the action with an 8-2 season.

The hopes for a larger and more successful team is looked forward to next year by the coaches.

Cross Country,

A Test of Endurance

Coach Oskar Schock.

The old telephone road behind the school was the training grounds for the Peninsula High's cross country team. Over rocks, mud puddles, blackberry bushes, hills and ravines, the objective was to run; to run far and hard. Unlike most of the running competition, cross country is purely a test of will power and endurance. Under the coaching of Mr. Shock, the team turned out everyday and ran several miles.

Although they lost to most of the teams in the Seamount League, the spirit of the competition consisted of good clean sportsmanship. Richard Tatton and Keith Williams proved to have the most potential of the seven-man team, as they led the team to victory over Bethel in the first match of the season.

Rifle Club Set Its Sites High

Club officers Steve Blanchard, Dave Hagen, and Dan Dower.

Aiming high, the rifle club organized and put in many hours of practice. By changing their headquarters from the wood-working shop in the industrial arts building to the back room of the renovated bus maintenance building, the club members had more room and didn't have to move anything around before they began their practice.

The terrific expense of the equipment was provided by the club. Ammunition alone cost from $5 to $20 per person, or about $400 for the entire club.

Running from October to May, the club officers — Steve Blanchard, president; Dave Hagen, secretary; and Dan Dower, treasurer — had a long term and an active one.

The ten best shooters were chosen from the club to make up the varsity team, which practiced on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Other club members were free to practice on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Their advisor was Mr. Hillard Beller, who kept the club moving and handled the business end of things.

Fore!

"If we could only play more home games" was the famous refrain of the golf team this year, for out of the ten matches they played, they won six and lost four and strangely enough, all of the games they lost were away games. They beat North Thurston, Fife, Laughbon, Sumner, Foster, and lastly, Bethel. The high scorers for the team were Bill Ahearn with 12, and Ron Baker with 13.

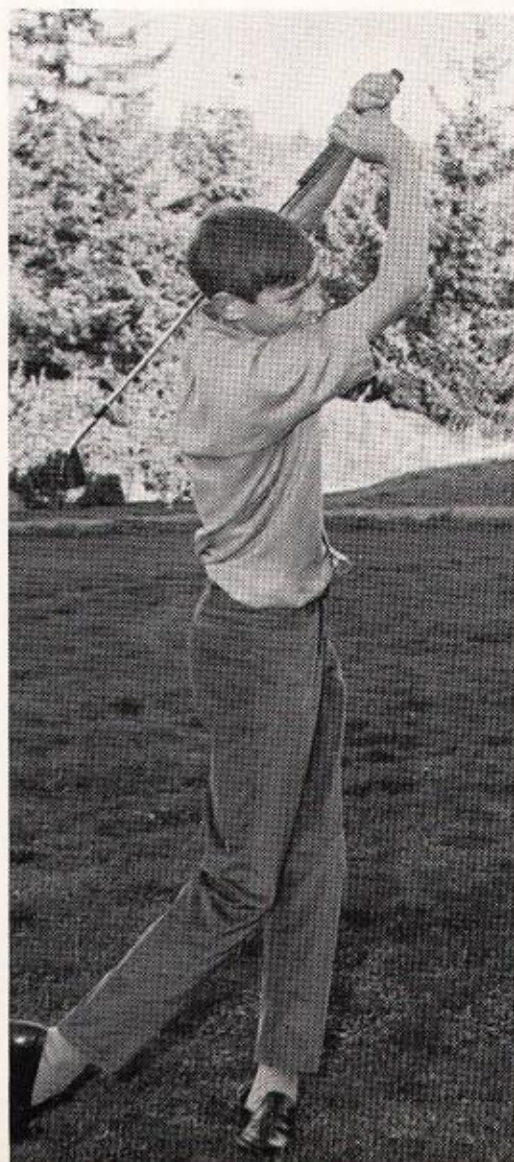

Losing only to Tumwater, Enumclaw, Mount Si, and Curtis, this year's team was doing well.

Mr. Smith, the golf coach feels that - with a freshman, Ron Baker, as the most outstanding player on the team, and with everyone coming back, except Doug Butterfield, - golf will take the championship next year.

Kris and Ellis Reign over Homecoming

Mud, rain, and the lack of the traditional bonfire and parade failed to dampen the spirits which made Peninsula's 1967-68 Homecoming an event to remember.

This year's Pep Club took an active part when they helped decorate the football players' lockers with everything from balloons to fly swatters. Many players were additionally surprised to find the inside of their lockers feathered and loaded with candy and other small tokens to urge them on to victory. Slogans like "Swat Those Hornets" and "Eat 'Em Up Seahawks" contributed to the enthusiasm built for the decisive game ahead.

Starting the Homecoming Assembly were the psychedelic sounds of the New Salvation Army Band, which later swung into the heated competition of a fixed tricycle race between the coaches. Tire treads imprinted in chocolate cake crumbs gave evidence of the cake eating contest, a test of appetites won by the juniors.

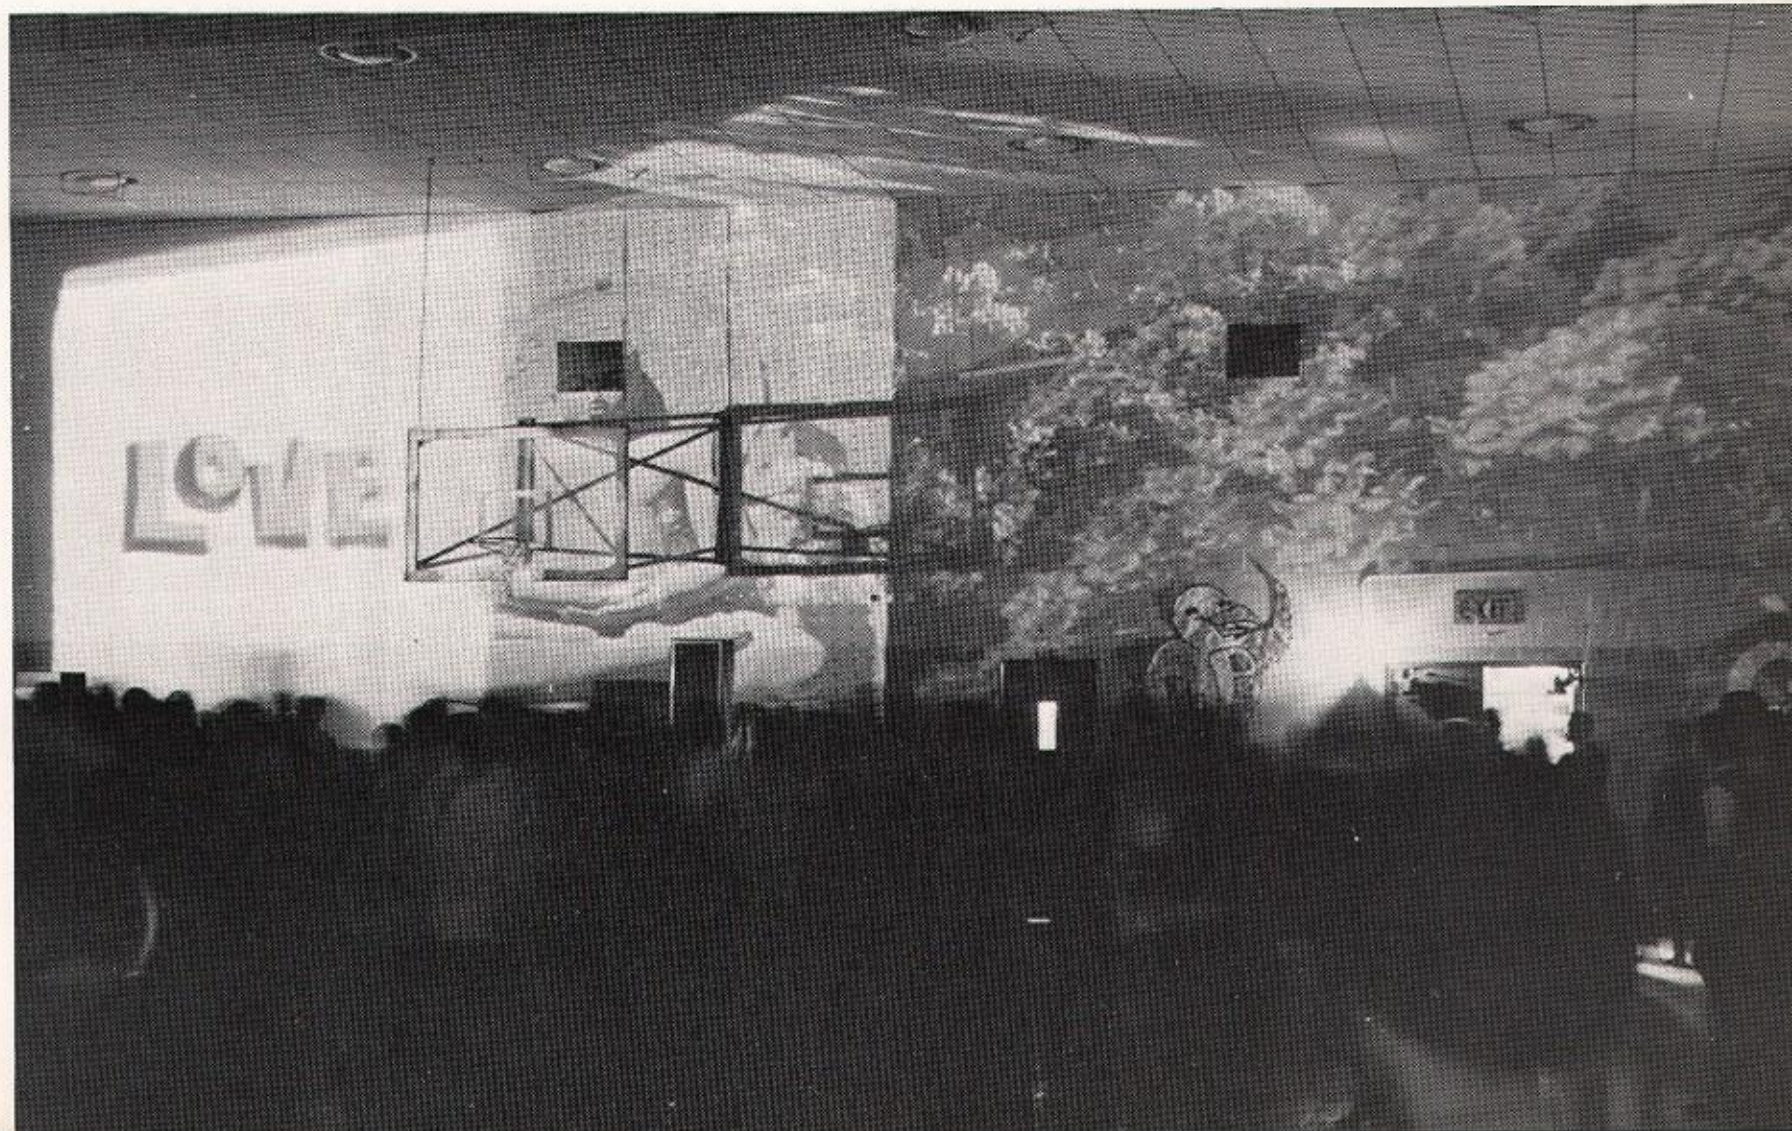

That night at the game, an enthusiastic crowd watched Peninsula down Enumclaw 7-0. Despite the muddy field, the traditional halftime show was presented by the Band, Drill Team, Seachicks, and Majorettes. Under the direction of Mr. Bruce Brummond, routines were performed to the tunes of "Georgie Girl," "The Stripper," and "Fever."

Completing the evening was the dance with music by the "Fanatics." At intermission the traditional crowning of the 1967-68 Homecoming Queen and King took place: Queen Kris Allen and King Ellis Farwell. Other royalty included Freshmen Becky Finholm and Randy Patterson, Sophomores Lois McKinney and Don Polworth, Juniors Jorja Peterson and Pat Lyle, and Seniors Helen Finholm and Chris McKinney.

The South Pacific

The idea of creating a South Pacific island in the middle of the gym floor completely fascinated the Senior Class. With the theme "South Pacific" firmly implanted in their minds, co-chairmen Jay Watland and Marlene Brones got things rolling. They planned our committees and helped create an enthusiastic group of workers.

After many hours of hard work, the gym was thoroughly renovated into an enchanted island complete with a volcano, a grass hut, a waterfall and deserted beach scene, a tropical island swing, and a small island cafe. Everything was set for the dance which was to take place the following evening.

Saturday night couples crossed over an ivy entwined bridge into a world of music and dancing made possible by the Monte Friel Trio. Royalty, which had been announced during decoration day, was again presented. King and Queen were Flip Blake and Shirley Dadisman. Other royalty included princes and princesses, Kit Northey and Vonda Fink, Jake Rice and Wendy Throckmorton, and Tim Bannon and Marlene Ketner.

The evening was completed as couples once again crossed over the bridge, leaving behind an island world, but taking with them many fond memories.

What kept the choir going besides strength, clock-watching, and the choir director? The choir officers did. To take the load off of Mr. Boyd's shoulders, the officers performed the time consuming jobs that ordinarily the teacher would perform. Donna Waterland, the choir secretary, took roll every day and treasurer, Wendy Throckmorton, handled the hundreds of dollars that came in from concerts, and special activities such as the annual spaghetti dinner. To keep the choir going in the absence of Mr. Boyd, Tim Bannon, the choir president, directed the choir and carried on the business of the day. Marlene Ketner, the vice-president, while performing many other necessary duties, still managed to keep Tim in line.

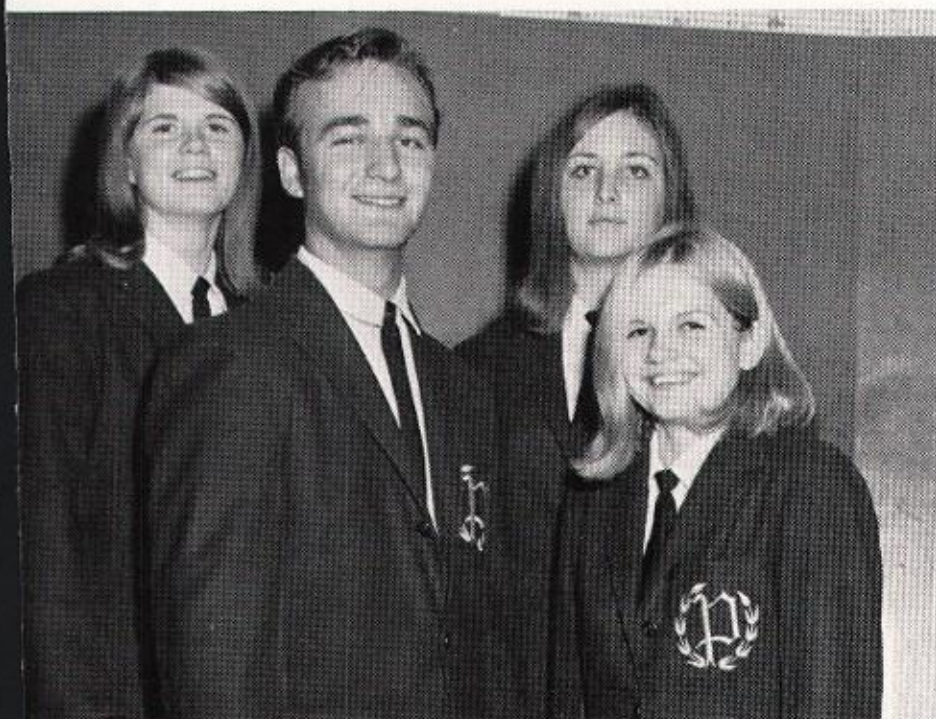

The music librarians were the real workers of the choir. They kept track of all the music that came and went during the year, which was a considerable amount. Many hours of their time was spent in the back room typing, filing, and sorting.

To make the list of the unsung heroes of this large performing group complete, the uniform managers must be added. These students took care of all the adjustments that were made on the choir uniforms.

A quiet evening at home.

"It stinks," a familiar quote heard around the Sycamore household, could hardly be used to describe this year's fall play. "You Can't Take It With You" came to life on the Pen High stage as one of the best plays ever seen on the Peninsula was presented.

A crazy playwright mother, a dart throwing grandfather, a ballet dancing daughter and the rest of this do-as-you-please cast entertained the audience with many humorous antics.

Under the new and extremely capable direction of Mr. Milton Boyd, the cast rehearsed many hours to insure their well deserved success at all of the performances.

In this parade dedicated to the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King, dozens of floats and performing units marched through Tacoma, Puyallup, and Sumner.

Band Played On

Tears, toil and sweat followed the Band through their more than fifty performances. Sour notes and irritated students molded themselves into a successful and good-sounding band. From an uncoordinated green mob to a precision marching group, these musical Seahawks won their fame in the Daffodil and the Rhododendron parades.

Spurring the Seahawk's athletic activities, the Band played for all of the home games and the many pep assemblies during the year.

On the cultural side of the musical events of the year, the Pen High Band participated in the two traditionally magnificent concerts: the Pop Concert and the Spring Concert.

Excitement was brewing in the music department because this year was the first time in Peninsula's history that it hosted the annual Band Festival. This contest of talent brought about a lot of excitement and a lot of hard work.

The Freshmen at Peninsula had one major task to complete during their first year here. It was their job to take notice of the upperclassmen. They watched actions and formed opinions as to what their policies would be when they took over the job of leading the school.

Those who have already experienced leadership were the Frosh officers. They were Jim Miller, president; Rick Jensen, vice-president; Becky Finholm, secretary; and Mark Metsker, treasurer.

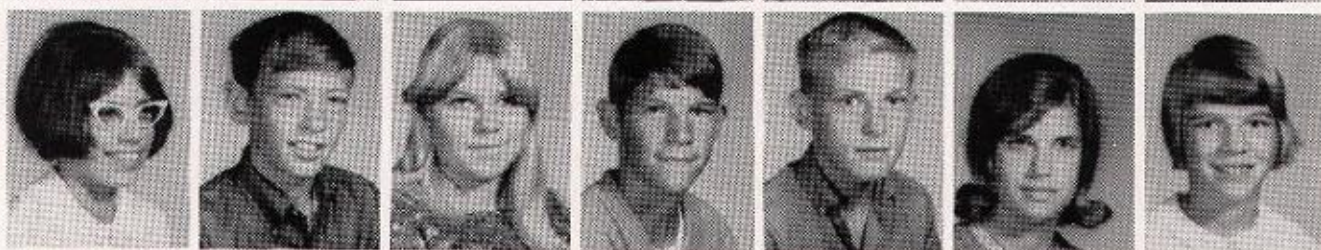

Like everyone else, Freshmen became involved in school life. They joined clubs, played sports, and elected their own royalty. They had fun and learned at the same time.

With president Tony Morrone heading the class of '70 for the second consecutive year, things got off to an organized start. Vice-president, Terry Voitenhans, Secretary, Donna Shindler, and treasurer, J. C. Baldwin also joined in with the advisors, Mrs. Jessie Finholm and Mr. Gary Stainbrook to make the sophomore class an active group of students.

Four J. V. Cheerleaders, Queen Patty Stocklin, Margaret Dahl, Denise Schillinger, and Lois McKinney, helped to symbolize the enthusiastic spirit of sophomores at various sports activities.

Beginning their second year of high school, sophomores have grown accustomed to high school life and the show a more active interest in clubs and extra curricular activities.

Sophomore class officers were (bottom) president, Tony Morrone; treasurer, J.C. Baldwin; (top) Vice-president, Terry Voitenhans; and secretary, Donna Shindler.

Just Think!

Among the high marks of the 67-68 year at Peninsula were the Juniors.

Greg Garnet, for instance, earned honors for all the Junior class by being selected the All Seamount Quarterback of the year. Also in the class of '69 were Vicki DeWalt and Cindy McGugin, who were chosen as Varsity cheerleaders by the student body.

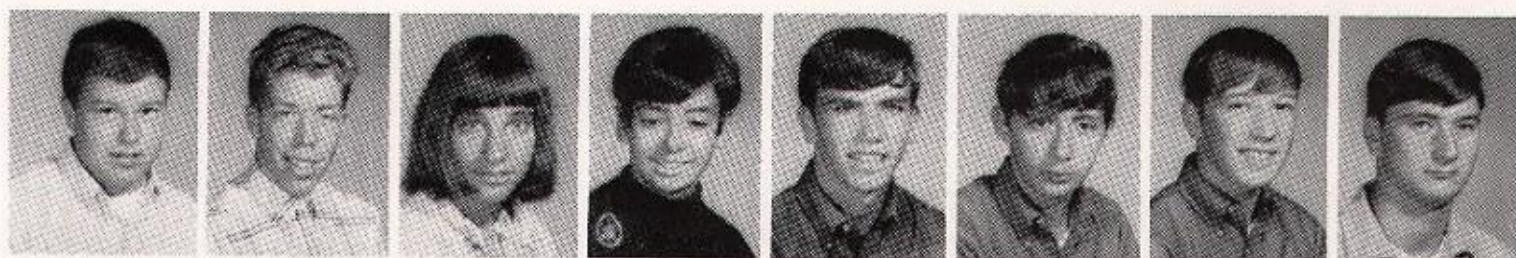

The third year of high school is a year of discovery. A year in which students realize the importance of life and the responsibilities that accompany it.

This is the year when teenagers become aware that soon they will be making decisions that will affect the rest of their lives.

Having an active interest extra events, music, sports, and participant clubs are patronized by this age group more than before, and school becomes a way of life that was never really understood in preceding years.

In short the Junior year is a year of transformation.

Seniors Reflect on

Seniors showed their authority. They led the school, not only in student government and clubs, but in sports, assemblies, and other happenings around school.

Guiding the seniors were Jim Wright, president; Jay Watland, vice-president; Shirley Dadisman, secretary; and Marcia Smith, treasurer. Class advisors were Mr. Ernest Miller and Mrs. Patricia Black.

May came and brought with it the preparation for that final event . . . Graduation on May 31. Some faced it with hesitation, while others were eager to complete their time here. Reflections of the past 12 years brought back both joy and sadness. It was a time to again set down hopes, ideals, and dreams. The future was handed to the Graduates, and the decision was now theirs.

The Senior Class began the 67-68 school year with a change in attitudes. It was their final year, a year to prove themselves to teachers and friends. Next year the big transition would come, the change from high school to a new life in a variety of ways. But most students were ready. Their four years of activities here at Peninsula gave them a strong foundation for the step into the world outside.

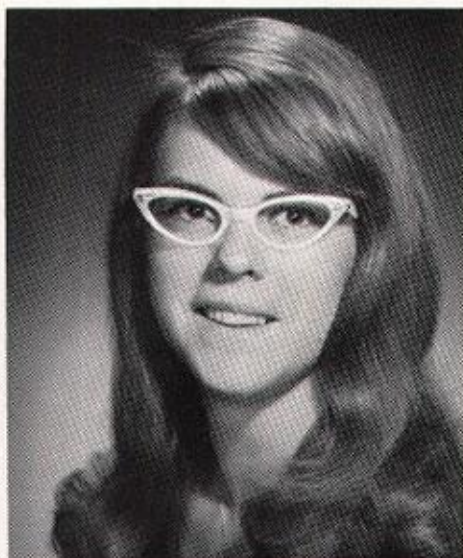

Feelings were mixed, friendships became stronger while others faded away, and few in the Class of '68 would ever forget the projects completed as a group. First came the Junior Prom, then the Senior Ball, and all of the other events in which this active group participated.

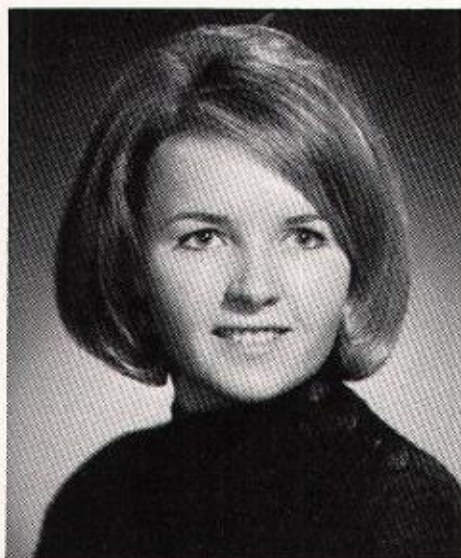

Homecoming Queen Kris Allen and Steve Willis.
